Indianapolis, August 15, 2012 - Julia A. Wickard, State Executive Director of USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) in Indiana announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has designated an additional 12 counties to the original 66 counties in Indiana as primary natural disaster areas due to losses caused by extreme drought. The 12 new counties are indicated with an asterisk:

"As we continue to add counties to the U.S. Drought Monitor FAST TRACK process, Indiana farmers are reflecting on the August USDA Crop Report released last Friday and getting anxious to learn what yields will be on their own farm fields," said Wickard.

Seven additional counties also qualify for natural disaster assistance because their counties are contiguous to the designated counties. The 7 new counties are indicated with an asterisk.

All counties listed above indicated with an asterisk were designated natural disaster areas on August 15, 2012, making all qualified farm operators in the designated areas eligible for low interest emergency (EM) loans from FSA, provided eligibility requirements are met. Farmers in eligible counties have eight months from the date of the declaration to apply for loans to help cover part of their actual losses. FSA will consider each loan application on its own merits, taking into account the extent of losses, security available and repayment ability. FSA has a variety of programs, in addition to the EM loan program, to help eligible farmers recover from adversity.

Recent changes in the disaster program will provide faster and more flexible assistance to farmers devastated by natural disasters. There are three significant improvements related to Secretarial disaster designations: a final rule that simplifies the process for Secretarial disaster designations and will result in a 40 percent reduction in processing time for most counties affected by disasters; a reduced interest rate for emergency loans that effectively lowers the current rate from 3.75 percent to 2.25 percent; and a payment reduction on Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) lands qualified for emergency haying and grazing in 2012, from 25 to 10 percent.

USDA encourages all farmers to contact their crop insurance companies and local FSA offices, as applicable, to report damages to crops or livestock loss. In addition, USDA reminds livestock producers to keep thorough records of losses, including additional expenses for such things as feed purchased due to lost supplies.
